Patriotic spectacle staged by Skyline Wesleyan Church

By Richard Garcia

For sheer patriotic fervor this past Fourth of July weekend, the third annual "I Love America!" spectacular easily will go down as the most exuberant, blood-churning, heart-pounding event held in the East County area in 1989.

Skyline Wesleyan Church in Lemon Grove staged this spectacle honoring God and country. Ten performances were presented between Friday and Monday this past weekend.

Only two shows had less than capacity attendance, with approximately an 800-plus audience; the remaining eight performances were sold-out, filling the auditorium's capacity seating of 1,100 seats for each performance. A total of over 14,400 people viewed the show.

Pat Boone was guest soloist for all ten performances. Mr. Boone sang a medley of his most popular 50's tunes, which included " April Love," "Love Letters in the Sand," and "Exodus."

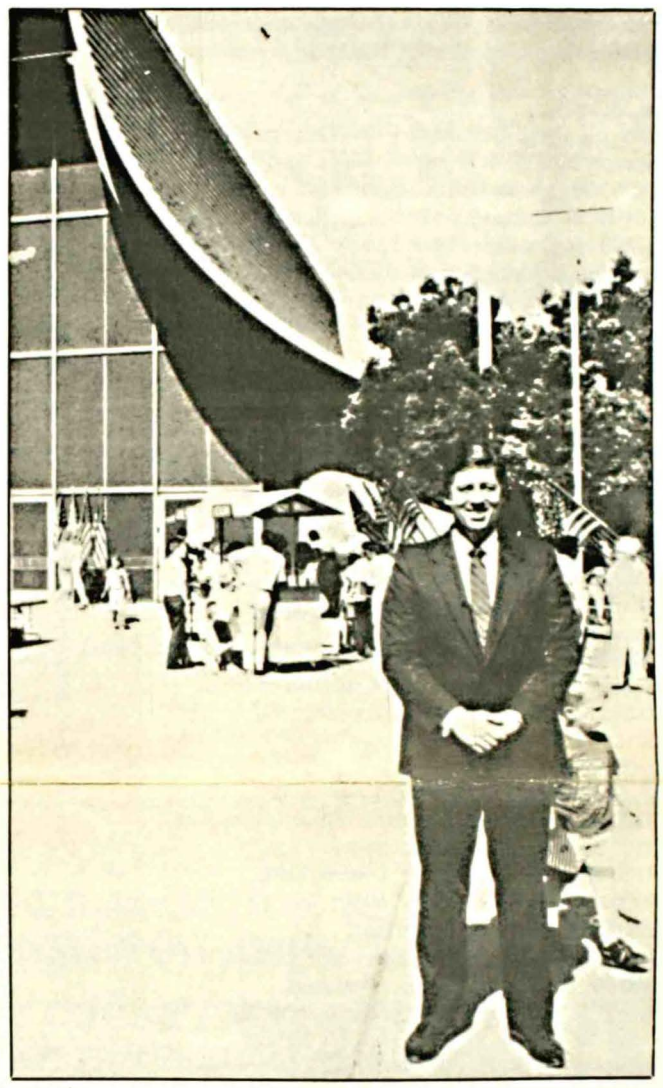
However, even Pat Boone had to take second billing to the show's top bill: America.

The performances were interrupted now and then by standing ovations. Giant screens located at the back end of the stage flashed slides of important patriotic events in America's history. The Declaration of Independence, immigrants entering the United States, and more.

Red, white and blue bunting decorated the stage. A color guard paraded up and down the aisles carrying "Old Glory" high. Members of all the U.S.A.'s armed forces were represented in full uniform. A cannon showered the audience with confetti as red, white and blue balloons cascaded from the ceiling.

A show attendant exclaimed as she made her way out of the auditorium after one of the performances, "If you don't feel good and proud, and don't feel like dancing after seeing this show, then you must be dead!"

Senior Pastor of the Skyline Wesleyan Church, Dr. John Maxwell said, "Three years ago . . . we concluded that we needed something during the summer that would attract people while providing good, wholesome entertainment. We needed something that would undergird the values of our country, and of course the Fourth of July comes in the middle of the year; so therefore, we put this together."



Dr. Maxwell added, "It [the performance] honors God, country, and the men and women that serve our country; it honors the values that have made America great; it stresses the freedoms that we have as American citizens; and, it is just the community coming together and being thankful for what God has done."

Indeed, the patriotic spectacular had a cost of approximately 200 performers – all members of the congregation.

"The people that do the singing and acting are our people here at Skyline," Pastor Maxwell said, adding, "all the costuming, all of the participants are people from our local congregation."

Children costumed as ducks, turkeys, piglets, dogs and chicks were part of the show; they got the entire audience involved in the singing and clapping to popular children's tunes. Young men and women, dressed in red, white and blue outfits sang and danced.

Other Skyline members volunteered as ushers, stagehands and as behind-the-scenes participants. Hundreds of people gave thousands of hours of their time during a five month period in order to present the "I Love America" spectacular to the community.

Pastor Maxwell said, "Skyline Wesleyan Church is a congregation that wants to reach out to the community. This is one of the ways. We really want to reach out with care and love."

Randy Rebuld was the producer and coordinator of the production.

During the month of December, Skyline Wesleyan Church will present its Living Christmas Tree event on December 2-17. This has become a tradition for Skyline. Twenty-six performances will be offered this year.

Skyline's three Sunday morning services have an attendance of over three-thousand worshipers. Over 1700 laymen in the church are active in ministry. Skyline Wesleyan Church is located at 1345 Skyline Drive in Lemon Grove, with Dr. John Maxwell as Senior Pastor.

Blood Bank T-shirts to be awarded to donors at church blood drive

"County-Wide Hero" is the message on the colorful 1989 San Diego Blood Bank T-shirt that will be awarded to all donors at the Saint John of the Cross Catholic Church Blood Drive.

The blood drive is scheduled to be held in the Adult Education Room at 8086 Broadway in Lemon Grove on Sunday, July 9 from 8 a.m. to 12 noon. The public is invited.

Each donor is also entitled to designate his or her donation to cover future blood usage. For instance, family coverage may be obtained by designating one donation for a Blood Assurance Plan which provides unlimited blood usage free of charge for the donor, spouse and children under the age of 19.

Or, donors may give in the name of a group which has a Blood Reserve Fund to provide blood replacement coverage for all members.

Expectant mothers and their babies also may be covered from the date of donation until two weeks after delivery.

The process of donating blood takes only about 40 minutes. Anyone in good health between the ages of 17 and 70 make give blood.

Youth for Progress Food Bank in dire need

By Richard Garcia

Hidden among a row of unobtrusive buildings fronting Campo Road, near Bancroft Street, is Youth for Progress, Inc., whose main concern is helping young people in crisis. Jeff Shea, case manager says, "A large share of the community doesn't know we are here, or what we are about. The only people that really know about us are the people that are in crisis."

Youth for Progress, Inc. is the over-all organization that oversees the Youth for Progress program and the La Presa program. Whereas the Youth for Progress program is juvenile specific, the La Presa program deals with all members of the community that find themselves in need of assistance.

Jeff Shea and Pat "Butterfly" Burdine, case managers work on about 140-150 cases a week, with families primarily in the communities of Spring Valley, La Mesa and Lemon Grove. However, the term "case" can be misleading. An individual case may be a family containing five or more members, but is written down as "one" case. The 140 or so cases seen weekly are actually comprised of 200 to 300 individuals.

Shea says, "We work with whole families, but if a particular family member does not wish to come in, that's O.K.; we work with those who choose to come in."

Although many clients are referred to the center through formal channels that are "plugged in" to social services organizations, many referrals come through informal means. An adult might come in to see what services are offered, then he or she will tell other members of the family or friends who may need services. The initial client will then bring in other members a day or two later.

"Then we have formal case management sessions," said Butterfly. "We help them out with information on referral services, with translation services and group counselorship."

Shea adds, "We try to figure out what the problem is, then we try to find the appropriate resource for that particular problem, which could be anything from lack of food, lack of transportation or medical care.

"Sometimes, a phone call may take care of a problem, or it may take 2 to 4 months of digging, looking around, sending people out on jobs, or out on job training programs."

Shea leans forward and says, "Let me get this off the bat; people that come here are in crisis. No one comes through that door that can afford it. We have a high job placement ratio and job retention because people we see want to work."

Shea tries to convince the local business community to give someone a break who is hungry and in need of a job.

"Another thing we provide is emergency food, which is the 'big' component of this program. That is how people usually first hear about us," said Butterfly. "After they [clients] get their emergency food packet they say, "What else do you do and how else can you help me?" she continued.

And even though the emergency food program plays such an important role in the Center's assistance effort, ironically, the food program is not funded by any government agency. Funding is primarily provided by United Way, but most of that money pays only for salaries and for some of the building's rent.

The emergency food component is strictly on the shoulders of the Center. Food for distribution is gathered by solicitating of the community through food drives, car washes, presentations to businesses and associations. School children hold food drives when school is in session between September and June.

Christmas and Thanksgiving are great times for donations. Shea rattled off a list of contributors that helped during the holiday season last year: churches, Target Stores, Big Mesa Market, Builders Emporium, Casa de Oro Business Association, boy scout troops, and the Chamber of Commerce, and others. "Also the Lions and Kiwanis are usually real big around the holidays," Shea said.

Summer is when the Center is most in need of donations. At the moment, the La Presa Program is in need of canned goods. It is during the summer months that most people forget that there are people in need.

Cash donations are used to defray the monthly rent bill; all cash donations automatically go into a "special fund" which pays the rent.

Anyone wishing to donate much-needed canned goods may contact Jeff Shea at 9035 Campo Road, or call 697-2927. If you cannot deliver the donation personally, Shea will make arrangements to have the items picked up.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING AND THE PROPOSED ADOPTION OF A FINAL ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT REPORT

SAN DIEGO COUNTY WATER AUTHORITY WATER DISTRIBUTION PLAN

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the San Diego County Water Authority's (SDCWA) Board of Directors will take action on the certification and adoption of the Final Environmental Impact Report for the Water Distribution Plan on July 13, 1989, at 4 P.M., in the Board Room at 3211 Fifth Avenue, San Diego, California. The Draft Environmental Impact Report has completed a 45-day public review period which commenced on April 5, 1989, and ended on May 19, 1989. Comments received during this period will be reviewed and considered by the Board of Directors in reaching their decision.

Description of the Plan

The Water Distribution Plan is designed to improve the reliability and efficiency of the SDCWA water delivery system to transmit sufficient quantities to meet the region's projected water demand to the year 2010. This system supplies water to approximately 97 percent of the population in San Diego County.

Improvements recommended by the Water Distribution Plan include the construction of a large diameter pipeline ranging in size from six to nine feet, and increases in capacity to existing filtration plants. If implemented, construction would take place in three phases, with the first phase beginning in the year 1990. Improvements to the SDCWA's transmission system are planned within the general vicinity of the existing Second San Diego Aqueduct, extending from the Riverside/San Diego County Line to the Lower Otay Reservoir. Installation of the pipeline would involve the excavation of a trench approximately 18-feet deep and generally 12 to 15-feet wide, which would cause disruption to traffic and neighboring properties. Tunnels would be used where required. The following areas, from north to south, contain preliminary alternative pipeline alignment locations for Phase I: Twin Oak Valley, City of San Marcos, Elfin Forest, San Dieguito, Mira Mesa, Scripps Ranch, Mission Trails Regional Park, Navajo/San Carlos, City of La Mesa, City of El Cajon, City of Lemon Grove, Valle de Oro, and Otay.

The SDCWA Board of Directors will make its decisions on the best overall routes based on community concerns, engineering feasibility, environmental impacts, and costs. All interested parties are invited to attend this meeting.

Commentary

by Max Goodwin

The Environmental Protection Agency, seeking salvation from the greenhouse effect, is redirecting attention toward nuclear energy as a source of power.

Greenhouse is this decade's fright-word. Of course, no one want the earth so parched that it may eventually become totally lifeless.

Already, things that are said to encourage air pollution and greenhouse are under strict governmental control. Listed are outdoors burning, aerosol sprays, auto exhausts, chemical residue that may come from chimneys of manufacturing plants and waste chemical products that formerly went to local dumps.

But there are those who favor more nuclear plants and their arguments are compelling. One such argument comes from the nationally known Heritage Foundation.

In a recent dispatch, Heritage offered the hypothesis that the Three Mile Island (TMI) nuclear accident killed no one and did no measurable damage to the environment, nor public health. Yet the accident seemingly drove a nail in the nuclear industry's coffin.

The Chernobyl accident, Heritage said, left more radiation in Pennsylvania than the Three Mile accident did seven years earlier.

Continuing, Heritage noted that the Three Mile Island accident, while a serious one, radiation was contained in the steel, reinforced building – a safety measure that is used in all U.S. civilian reactors.

"While such safety eliminates the possibility of a U.S. Chernobyl, TMI served to galvanize anit-nuclear sentiment, and no U.S. utility has ordered a new reactor since," Heritage said.

"The less we use nuclear power, the more we have to rely on other forms of energy such as coal and fossil fuels. This reliance has serious consequences."

Heritage supplied this list:

• Conventional sources are "dirty" by comparison and contribute to environmental problems such as acid rain, air pollution, and the so-called greenhouse effect.

• Oil and coal are non-renewable resources.

• The more reliant we are on oil, the more dependent we are on foreign sources for our energy supplies.

• Coal mining is dangerous – The life expectancy of U.S. coal miners is 3 years less than the average.

"One drawback of current nuclear technology is the cost of building power plants that meet the very demanding requirements," Heritage said.

A solution may be at hand: The modular high-temperature gas-cooled reactors use inert gas, such as helium, to cool nuclear fuel, which is stored in modules smaller than a conventional plant. The nuclear material is encased in a ceramic shell that can withstand extremely high temperatures.

"Under the circumstances that caused Chernobyl and TMI, a gas-cooled reactor would simply shut down. Thus, the gas-cooled reactors do not require the same extensive safety equipment that conventional, water-cooled reactors need, making them both safer and cheaper to build and operate.

"There is currently only one gas-cooled reactor in the U.S. It went on-line in Colorado in 1974, but has been losing money because of a design flaw unrelated to safety. A helium-cooled plant in West Germany, however, has been efficiently and safely generating power for several years."

As scientists continue the search for eliminating the greenhouse problem, some environmentalists are expressing renewed interest in nuclear power, it was said.

It's The Law

By LaMar B. Brown, Attorney at Law

Questions: What is Small Claims Court and when can I use it?

Answer: Small Claims Court is a court where you can explain your side of a controversy to a judge who will then decide the case, as long as the amount in dispute is under $2,000.

An example of what happens in Small Claims Court is "The People's Court" with Judge Wapner seen on your local television station in the evenings. Both sides of the controversy or dispute appear before a judge who is authorized to decide the matter. Each side presents its evidence and description of the dispute and the judge makes the decision. Attorneys are generally not allowed to represent either party at the proceeding. It is strictly you and the person with whom you have the dispute.

Every Municipal Court in San Diego has a Small Claims Division. If you decide that you need the assistance of the court in a matter, go to the Small Claims office of the court and ask for the forms necessary to file the claim. These forms are free. You can also write for your forms, including a self-addressed, stamped envelope and the court will mail you the forms. The forms will explain the procedure and the steps you must take in filing the action.

If you have questions concerning the forms, the clerks in the Small Claims Division will be willing to assist you in filling out the forms. Remember, the clerks are not attorneys and cannot advise you on legal questions you may have concerning your action. If you do have legal questions, you may wish to call the County Small Claims Advisor at (619) 237-2700.

After your have filled out all of the forms, take them to the Small Claims Division office and file your papers with the court. The filing fee is $6. If evidence is offered of your inability to afford the fee, there are procedures available to have the court waive the filing fee.

After the papers have been filed, the court clerk will assign you a date, at least thirty days later, which will be the date of your hearing.

Once your papers have been filed and you have been assigned a date for your hearing, it is necessary to "serve" the complaint to the defendant. "Service" is accomplished by having the Small Claims Court do a certified mail service on the defendant which costs $3 for each defendant. Another option would be to have the Marshall's office serve the claim personally, which is $20 for each defendant.

On the date of the hearing, make sure that you and your witnesses appear at the hearing on time. Also, make sure that you bring with you all the documents you want to present as evidence in an acceptable form; any witnesses to support your side of the story; and any other evidence which will support your side of the case. If for some reason a witness cannot appear in court, a sworn or notarized statement may be accepted by the court as that person's testimony.

Make sure that when you appear in court that you listen very carefully to the Judge's questions. Remember that the Judge is asking questions in order to get answers which he needs in order to reach a decision which he believes is appropriate.

If you do receive a judgement in your favor, it will be necessary for you to collect this money from the defendant, provided he has the ability to pay.

From Where I Sit

by Frank Andrews

Last Friday evening, my wife, Willie and I pulled our van into one of the disabled parking places which was only a short "hobble and limp" to the entrance of the Starlight Bowl. Willie said kind of disgustingly, "The show doesn't start until 8:00 and it's now only 6:00, so what are we going to do all that time?"

We brought our dinner with us, some of my famous fried chicken. (I got the recipe from the "Colonel" when he was only a "Corporal"). Our van has a portable table with chairs, radio and almost all the comforts of home, so eating in the open air was most invigorating.

After our sumptuous meal we each did our thing for about two hours; Willie read her mystery paperbacks and I scribbled out a couple of short stories. The time passed quickly until the cute little bell-ringer girl announced, "Curtain time, with no overture tonight, the show will start promptly at 8:00."

We were ushered to our choice, nearly on-stage seats and handed a very elaborate program. The orchestra was tuning up in the pit as we sat down, and in just a few minutes a hush came over the audience, the lights were dimmed, and as the curtain parted the Sound of Music burst into full swing.

We had both seen and loved the movie version of the great Sound of Music, starring Julie Andrews (no relation) and Christopher Plummer, so we didn't know what to expect from this Starlight production.

With the aid of the Bowl's improved sound system, the beautiful music rendered "Bravo Style" by Maestro Lloyd Cooper and his majestic orchestra, and being so close to the live performance gave both of us such an exhilarating feeling not experienced with the movie version.

Willie was so pleased with the Sound of Music because there was not a trace of profanity or vulgarity in the entire performance, which is a rarity in our modern times. She has now placed Sound of Music on her W. A. (Wife's Approved) list of shows, along with Mary Poppins, Sesame Street, the weather report, and test pattern.

Lindsey Monzingo who portrayed on the the von Trapp kids back in the 1982 Sound of Music production at Starlight Bowl, has returned this year as the alert "plane spotter" to warn the cast of oncoming, overhead aircraft and the impending freeze.

We thoroughly enjoyed our "night out." Dinner out in the delightful San Diego evening climate, and then good, clean entertainment amongst the "stars" that can be recommended for the whole family.

"Sombreros off" to the San Diego Light Opera Association for another winner. Please give us more.

Sports Commentary

By John E. Wirges

Pete Rose is a fighter, and it looks as if he may have to be dragged kicking and fighting to the special hearing baseball commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti has ordered, but that's the way Pete has always played the game.

Rose is charged with gambling, betting on baseball and more specifically, betting on the team he served so well as a player and now as a manager.

The evidence is seems overwhelming. It fills some 225 pages of a report prepared by baseball special counsel John Dowd. The case against Rose includes personal interviews with individuals who allegedly have first-hand knowledge of Rose's betting. There are telephone records, taped telephone conversations between Rose and one of his alleged bookies, betting records and betting slips allegedly written in Rose's handwriting and bearing his fingerprints.

Under baseball rules, commissioner Giamatti has the authority to gather evidence, hold a hearing and decide the fate of anyone who breaks the basic rules of required conduct.

The most basic rule in baseball conduct is the gambling rule. for baseball folks, players, owners, managers, front office types, ticket sellers, team photographers, even bat boys, betting on baseball is "verboten." It is absolutely and positively forbidden – even if the baseball personality is visiting Atlantic City or Las Vegas where such betting is legal.

The "gambling rule" is reproduced in large type and displayed on the wall of every dressing room in baseball. In addition, players, coaches, managers and club employees must sign an acknowledgement of understanding of that rule every year.

When you haven't got a defense, it's an old tactic in legal circles to attack the accuser. That's what Rose's attorneys have done. They went before a politically motivated, "friendly" judge and threw a "legal" monkey wrench in commissioner Giamatti's hearing schedule.

Judge Norbert A. Nadel, a political Cincinnati jurist, who is also running for re-election next year, violated every rule of law in granting Rose a temporary restraining order from having to appear before Giamatti.

Today (Thursday) he will hear arguments on granting an injunction to remove the Rose hearing entirely away from Giamatti's control.

It's time to call a halt to this legal charade. One always admired the way Pete Rose played the game. For him, it was all out, all the time. He hit singles and he ran the bases. He gave all he had. And on the field, he was a treat.

But it doesn't work that way in the business of running the game. Going all out in attacking the commissioner doesn't equate to running out an infield single. This one isn't about style. This one is about conduct. And all the legalese is just delay.

Rose is guilty of misconduct and violations of the basic baseball gambling rule. He admits betting on sporting events. A mountain of evidence says he bet on baseball.

Pete Rose was good for baseball. For many, he was baseball. But he drew the line. He made a mockery of the rules. He made it baseball or him. And Pete just can't win this one. For the good of the game, Pete Rose has to answer for his deeds.

Shriner Band entertains at outdoor concert

By Richard Garcia

Summer has arrived in Lemon Grove, bringing with it free concerts at the Berry St. Park. A peaceful, balmy Tuesday evening provided the perfect setting for Lemon Grove's second outdoor concert.

Last Tuesday, June 27, the Al Bahr Shriner Band, The Noteables, played to an estimated audience of 350 people. Families, children and seniors enjoyed the live, big band sounds of swing and boogie-woogie presented by the Shriner musicians.

Couples both young and old danced, as families, spreading blankets on the grass, picnicked as they visited with old friends or made new ones while enjoying the concert. The neighborhood children made good use of the park's playground equipment throughout the evening as seniors sat on lawn chairs brought along for the evening's event.

Although many who attended the concert walked from nearby neighboring homes, many more people drove their cars. Surprisingly, considering the large number of people, neither traffic nor parking was a problem. Parking was well-planned and organized. Teenage attendants provided directions; parking was allowed on the grass along the perimeter of the park. For those who didn't bring snacks along, the Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce manned a booth where food and drinks were sold.

If you missed this concert, you missed a fun night – but you're not too late for the next Concert in the Park. On July 11, the Catillacs will provide the entertainment at Berry St. Park located on the corner of Vernon St. (west, off Massachusetts Ave.) and Berry St.

NOTICE OF DEATH AND OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF GEORGE DeGAETANO
Case Number: 149454

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate, or both, of: GEORGE DeGAETANO
A PETITION has been filed by VINCENZA M. SOZZANI in the Superior Court of California, County of San Diego, requesting that VINCENZA M. SOZZANI be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority allows the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain actions, however, the personal representative is required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to this petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

Dinner/auction to benefit Make-A-Wish Foundation

Each of us will have the ability to make a child's wish come true on July 22 when the Make-A-Wish Foundation of San Diego, Inc. holds its annual black tie dinner/auction, Magical Moments.

The event, Magical Moments 2, will feature an Arabian horse, a seven-foot Porsche and a walk-on role on a major soap opera as auction items along with many more.

The evening will also feature Stan Miller, KFMB news anchor, as the emcee and Kip Toner as auctioneer.

The Make-A-Wish Foundation, a non-profit organization, was established in 1980 and is now the nation's largest and strongest wish-granting charity, with chapters across the United States and internationally.

They have been responsible for granting wishes to thousands of children with life-threatening illnesses. This event, which was a sell-out last year, is the largest single fundraiser event for the Make-A-Wish Foundation of San Diego.

The evening will begin at 6 p.m. at the San Diego Marriott with the magical ambience of magicians and mimes before guests are treated to a live and silent auction followed by dancing to the sounds of Joe Cool and the Rumblers.

Tickets for Magical Moments 2 are $75 each and can be purchased by calling the Make-A-Wish office at 299-2729.
